"Within easy access to an exclusive, secluded beach, this impressive villa with private pool provides its 12 guests with spacious and comfortable accommodation spread over three separate units for easy holiday living on the Comporta stretch of coast of Portugal".

This impressive villa sits within 2,500 m² of Mediterranean gardens planted with pines and live trees, aromatic herbs and flowering shrubs, located a short drive away or bike ride between rice paddies and rugged dunes to Brejos beach. Accommodating up to 12 guests split between the main house and 2 separate thatched cabanas, this villa is suitable for year-round rentals. The mid-century styled interiors have wooden floors and ceilings, with mosquito netting on all the doors and windows. Air-conditioning/heating is included, and there is a large fireplace in the main communal room.

The Comporta region sits within the Sado River Nature Reserve where you can go dolphin watching, learn to surf, hire bikes rather than use a car, or go horse riding on the dunes. There is no in-your-face nightlife and it has an unpretentious vibe with just a hand full of trendy restaurants and hippy-chic shops. Comporta, Carvalhal, and Pego beaches each host cool beach bars/restaurants, whilst Brejos beach is practically private and only known by locals – lucky guests at this villa will be given a card that opens a gate at the end of a path with access to a pristine sandy beach.
